Johnson Will Deliver Talk Here Tuesday

William E., "Pussyfoot" Johnson, will deliver a prohibition address at the Appomattox high school auditorium Tuesday night, January 26, at 8 o'clock. His subject will be, "Babylon and Way Stations."

This noted lecturer has been in the public eye for many years as a champion of prohibition. He received the name, "Pussyfoot" from the Indians because of the quiet and efficient manner in which he made his surprise attacks on law violators when a special officer for the government in the Indian Territory. He arrested and punished more than 4,000 while an officer.

He brings to his audience a thought-compelling and interesting message. He appeals to young and old and has captivated his hearers in dozens of nations and all over the United States.

BENT CREEK

BENT CREEK,—It will no doubt be of interest to many of the readers of the Times-Virginian to know that the right-of-way of No. 13 is being cut now through the mountain that furnishes water for Buck Hollow spring. The spring will be on the right hand side of the road, coming next to the river.

The bridge across Bent Creek on No. 307 has not been let as yet. It was supposed to have been let to the Allic Construction Co., of Bristol, but that was an error. The contractor on 307 report good progress so far.

Move To Sign Up Farmers Now On

The tobacco signup campaign is on again, after an unsuccessful attempt to attain the necessary acreage last spring but in which Appomattox county lead the way with approximately 65% of tobacco pledged.

It will be squarely up to each community to go out and get this remaining 25%; meetings will be held and a committee appointed. The chairman will direct these local drives and report to the county agent, R. B. Hudgins, acting for the county organization committee.

Local farmers have until July 1, to secure a necessary sign-up of dark fired tobacco and at that time if the acreage is sufficient the Federal Farm Board will cooperate in perfecting a marketing organization. In case the association does not go then the Federal Farm Board will consider further attempts useles and withdraw all support and suppose that dark, fired tobacco growers are indifferent and satisfied with the present marketing system.

There will be a tobacco outlook and organization meeting at Pamplin high school, Thursday, January 28, 7:30 P. M. Growers and business men are urged to attend and give publicity to this meeting.

Veteran At 89 Recalls Scenes Of Old Days

There are only a few of them left, those heroes who wore the Gray back in 1865. This week as the nation observed the birthday of the immortal Robert E. Lee, the attention of the editor was turned toward the heroes who still survive to tell the story of the days leading over the tragic trail from Bull Run to Appomattox.

Four men, Daniel Ferguson, Dick Ferguson, Tom Marsh and C. H. Coleman, now live in Appomattox county, who were active as soldiers of the Confederacy. The editor interviewed one of them, Mr. Coleman, this week.

C. H. Coleman is now 89, he observed a birthday December 11. He was in the 44th. Virginia Regiment, Company C. He was at Gettysburg, the high-water mark of the Confederacy, and he was with Lee at Appomattox.

"I've never spent a whole day in bed, never had a doctor called to attend me and never been asked twice to pay a bill," declared the veteran. He is tall and straight now, keen and active, almost as ever. "I'm anxiously awaiting the next Confederate reunion. It meets in Richmond. I always go. The ranks are thinning fast now, but those of us left must carry on."

Cut Out Agent And Foresee Other Slashes

LEE'S DECISION

(By Mary Louise Gills)

Through shifting clouds the pale, frail moon
Looks coldly down on Arlington
Where dwells within those stately halls
Virginia's peerless son.

Midnight— beneath the budding trees
A solitary figure, Lee,
Walks with bowed head and weary tread,
His travail none ma ysee.

To arms! the martial cry resounds;
He hears the tramp of marching feet;
And in his ear the cannon's roar
Dulls all life's music sweet.

His hour—conflict within, without—
Has come. The Union bids him lead
Her armies well equipped and strong—
Glory and wealth his meed.
Shall he an allen army lead
Upon Virginia's sacred soil?
Against his native state unshead
His sword—her homes despoil?

Disrupt the Union his sires served
Himself had served in other wars?
Yet now the Mother State would claim
Him for the Southern Cause.
Black clouds obscure the waning moon.
Still on his knees when dawn appears
He sees the South invaded, torn—
Flow, bloody tears!

Up from his knees—his choice he know.
Triumphant over selfish aims
Immortal honors crown his head,
The world our Lee acclaims!

Seek War Vets Hospital Site For Appomattox

Appomattox is after the War Veterans' Hospital to be established in Virginia by the federal government. A citizens committee has submitted a petition and brief to the commission and offered several available sites. Other sites may be added later for their consideration if their owners so desire.

The commission has announced that the hospital will be located near the center of the state, and since Appomattox is the exact geographical center of the state added impetus is given the local petition. Other specifications are completely met here and coupled with the sentimental appeal to make this a national shrine in commemoration of the surrender of 1865, make Appomattox's bid cogent and attractive.

STONEWALL

STONEWALL, — Glenn Drinkard is in Lynchburg having his throat treated by a specialist.

Mrs. Mary Moore is quite feeble at this writing.

Teachers at the Appomattox and Pamplin schools have agreed to work the last two weeks of the present term without pay, thus permitting the schools to run for a regulation term.

Superintendent J. A. Burke, yesterday commented upon the fine spirit of the teachers and stated that this would protect the credits of pupils, which have been endangered if the term had been cut.

Other schools in the county will run for eight months. Next year all teachers will receive a ten per cent cut in salaries, according to the new economy plan of the county whereby taxes have been materally reduced.

Teachers Adopt Resolutions Wed.

(Special to Times-Virginian)

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Buckingham county school board in special session January 19, 1932:

"Whereas, a depression unparalleled in the history of our country has brought about a deflation in values to a marked degree; and

"Whereas, our land-owners, farmers, and tax-payers in general are in a lower financial state than has been known since the days immediately following the Civil War; and

"Whereas, there seems to be no immediate prospect of improvement in sight;

"Therefore, we the Superintendent, clerk, and members of the Buckingham county school board do hereby voluntarily offer to cut our present salaries or allowances to the extent of ten per cent, beginning at a time fixed by the officials of our State Lee Jones Appomattox, and to urge other reductions go into effect.

"Furthermore, we believe that the time has come for a reasonable reduction in taxes all along the line, as a definite result of the policy of deflation, and only in justice and fairness to the taxpayer in general; and we wish to place ourselves on record as favoring such a reasonable reduction.

"However, we would urge our county board of supervisors to be careful in the matter of tax reduction, not to be carried away by the spirit of pessimism to the degree of undermining the credit of the government. We hope, therefore, that they will go slowly and act only after mature considering every phase of the matter. For our roads will still have to be maintained, our schools must still be educated, our poor must be looked after, and the public protected from lawlessness. This cannot be done without a certain amount of taxation of our people. Even in the hardest of hard times our government must function, our laws be enforced, and our firesides protected.

"Finally, we say for the benefit of the public generally that we believe our country has as efficient, as conscientious, and as industrious public officials as any country in Virginia, while at the same time records available to all will show that their salaries are among the very lowest paid by any county in the state of Virginia. We believe that they can be shown the public dollar is as wisely spent here as anywhere in the Commonwealth; and we, as a school board, pledge ourselves to do our utmost to carry forward the work of the school system as carefully, as economically, and as conscientiously as is humanly possible so to do; and we call upon the citizens of our county to support us in this determination.

That Winter Orchard

If you have a view of an orchard out your back window you are favored at many seasons. Right now, when the snow has covered the network of branches and icicles hang from married appe boughs, the orchard is as lovely as when Spring dresses it up in party blossom dresses, when Summer hangs fruit there, or Autumn clothes it in scarlet and gold.

Pick Your Fruit Now

If you have that orchard out your back window you probably go down into the basement to pick your fruit at this season—home preserved fruits, peaches, apples, plums or whatever your orchard bears. If you haven't, your pantry shelves bear a harvest of canned fruits from many orchards the world over. You can pick peaches from Georgia, pineapples from Hawaii, figs from California —fruit from everywhere.

Certain fruits go particularly well with winter foods. For example, you will enjoy gathering from your winter orchard canned apple or peach butter to serve with English toasted muffins before your tea-time fire; you will doubtless like canned gooseberries with your winter pork roasts; canned Bartlett pears cooked with the juices of your roast lamb; pineapple broiled with bacon for breakfast; pitted sour cherries for rich syrupy winter pies, and cranberry sauce for many occasions, for fruit salads, for meat sauces, and for cheery little tarts to serve for the last act with coffee.*

"It's all wrong," we agreed. "But what can we do about it?"

"Our verdict was, "nothing, except keep on telling tobacco growers the inhuman slavery to which they are subjecting themselves and their families by tolerating such a selling system.

"I believe farmers have sense enough, courage enough, and initiative enough to control the selling, as well as, the production of their crops and livestock. I believe that something will be done about selling tobacco cooperatively.

"But one thing is certain, the farmer himself must do something about it", Mr. Hudgins concluded.
